American Hungarian Educator’s Association
33rd Annual Conference
May 8 – 10, 2008
Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, USA

“Hungarian Identity in an Intercultural World”

The American Hungarian Educators’ Association (AHEA) is a professional and scholarly organization devoted to the teaching and dissemination of Hungarian culture, history, folklore, literature, language, fine arts, music and scientific achievements. Through annual conferences and its newsletter, AHEA seeks to provide an opportunity for those interested in Hungarian Studies and Hungarian Heritage to further these interests. The conferences provide a forum for scholarly addresses and an opportunity for discussion groups devoted to topics of special interest. In order to reach as wide an audience as possible, the primary language of the conference is English.

Officers: President: Judith Némethy ~ Vice-President: Louise Vasvári ~ Secretary: Enikő M. Basa ~ Treasurer: Anita Komlodi

Contact: Enikő M. Basa, 4515 Willard Avenue, Apt. 2210, Chevy Chase, MD 20815 Fax: 301 657-4763 ~ Email: eniko.basa@verizon.net ~ Web: http://magyar.org/ahea/

Preliminary Program

Thursday Evening Events Organized by Ruth G. Biro

May 8, 2008 (All activities in Bayer Hall)

18:00 – 19:00 Registration ~ Bayer Learning Center Foyer

19:00 – 19:30 Presentation by Les Banos, secret agent in the Hungarian resistance: “World War II and the Holocaust in Hungary”

19:30 – 21:15 Film: Brady’s Escape. Introduced by Ruth G. Biro

Snacks and beverages will be available.

In this action-packed story by Pál Gábor, an American pilot is shot down over Nazi occupied Hungary near Debrecen. Brady parachutes to safety and finds refuge with a farming family and horsemen on the Hortobágy. He is on the run and hunted by the Nazis before he escapes to Yugoslavia. Scenes depict war-torn Hungary in 1944, Soviet troop movement into the region, displaced Hungarians with their possessions, stolen Jewish goods taken to trains, and other aspects of WWII. The video, produced by Robert Halmi, was filmed in Hungary and features almost exclusively Hungarian actors. Brady’s Escape is ninety minutes in length and in English, with Hungarian and German language segments and subtitles.
